

Competition and Antitrust in Mexico

Overview

Rely on our Competition and Antitrust practice to provide timely, high-quality business and legal counsel on issues facing for your business in Mexico. Our goal is to help you gain an edge in a fast-changing, increasingly competitive global environment. Our team of partners can provide you with the full spectrum of competition law services across a wide array of industries.

We have been advising clients like you on competition matters for more than 15 years. We can help you with clearance issues and represent you in investigations. We can help you navigate competition laws, which are increasingly critical for conducting business in Mexico, especially since the Federal Economic Competition Commission (COFECE), Mexico's competition agency, received constitutional autonomy in 2013, strengthening its enforcement powers to regulate markets.

We are deeply involved in merger control clearance matters related to M&A transactions, and have won approval of multifaceted acquisitions and divestitures in complex markets, including regulated industries, such as oil and gas, electricity, and other non-regulated industries. Our deep knowledge of industry sectors enables us to address a regulator's market concerns throughout the merger control process. We can represent you during an anti-competitive investigation and with procedures following an order to pursue responsibility. We also represent companies not directly involved in an investigation, whether as indirect agents involved in the market practices, observers and complainants (among others).

As antitrust issues often cross borders, our global offices can provide you with lawyers experienced in every legal tradition in the world. Our diversity allows us to provide more innovative, client-focused solutions to complex business issues.
